

Relationship-Based Classroom

Children's Therapeutic Learning Center

Connecting for Life:

Meeting the needs of young children with Autism Spectrum Disorders and their families.

The Children's Therapeutic Learning Center provides a unique and highly specialized program for young children facing the challenges of Autism Spectrum Disorders and their families. Utilizing research-proven principles from Early Childhood Special Education, Applied Behavioral Analysis and the Developmental, Individual-difference, Relationship-based (DIR) Model, the classroom-based program supports young children in improving their ability to form positive, meaningful relationships and communicate effectively with caregivers and peers. In addition, the evidence-based program emphasizes skill acquisition in all areas of child development.

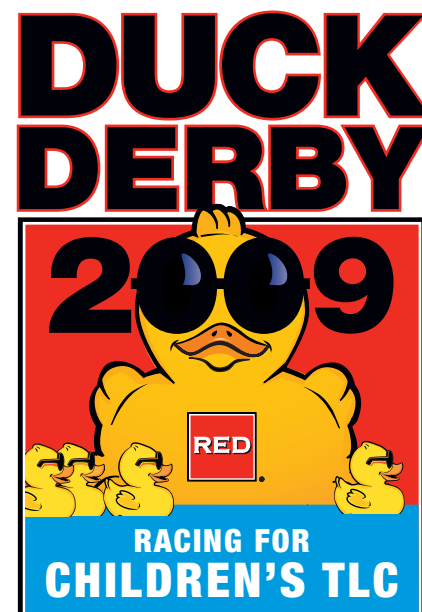

Staffed by highly trained professionals from a variety of disciplines, the program provides low adult/child ratios to maximize the benefit to children enrolled and allow for frequent contact and consultation with parents and/or caregivers. Quarterly home visits help engage the family as treatment partners and assist parents in their ability to understand their child's condition and effectively work to improve their child's functioning in all areas of daily life.

"My son let go of my hand, grabbed his teacher and told me bye-bye the 2nd day of school! He loves attending the RBC and has been improving upon his social skills and language ever since! I have seen a completely different child within a few months."

- Mother of four year old son

One of a series of brochures for The Children's Therapeutic Learning Center. This one outlining the Center's capacity is the area of Autism.

Logo and marketing materials for a fund-raiser benefitting the CTLC.

